REPUBLICANS CONFESS.

AFTER A PARTY young people sit up to talk it over.

After a political convention, all politicians and some of the people talk it over.

Much discussion of the prohibition plank, and there is complaining. The plank, to the average man, is about as plain as Spencer's definition of evolution, which, written from memory, on this Pennsylvania train, runs as follows:

Evolution is an integration of matter and a concomitant dissipation of motion during which the matter passes from an indefinite, incoherent homogeneity to a definite coherent heterogeneity, and during which the retained motion undergoes a parallel transformation.

ASKED by the writer to put his definition in words readily understood, Herbert Spencer replied that any one to whom his definition was not perfectly clear could not possibly understand evolution, therefore it was useless to re-write it.

The main thing about the Republicans' prohibition plank is their confession, however involved, that prohibition is a failure. That means a change, and perhaps a gradual elimination of the "things gained by prohibition," including bootlegging, racketeering, gang crime organized as a great industry, drinking of whisky and gin by high school children, and the establishment of five secret speakeasies for every open saloon of anti-prohibition days.

Control of liquor traffic by the government will replace control by criminals, and gigantic liquor revenues will help pay taxes instead of financing wholesale crime.

CONGRATULATIONS to the House, to Mr. Garner, Mr. Rayburn for passing the Cresser bill authorizing contracts for sending mail to Europe by dirigible, and congratulations to Mr. Cresser of Ohio, author of the bill. Private enterprise is prepared to construct dirigibles to make the European round trip, with mail and passengers in one week, stops in Europe and America included. The ocean trip will be made in two days at first, more rapidly later.

With all our depression, this nation should lead in such enterprises and there is no doubt that dirigible fast mail, at three or four times the usual charge, will tax the dirigible's capacity and yield great profit to the government.

An Italian, using a plane kept strictly secret as to its construction.

Leetonian Jailed On Larceny Count

LISBON, June 18—Donald Smith of Leetonia is in the county jail in default of $1,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Harry L. Weikert of Butler township on a charge of larceny.

Smith is accused by Theron Caldwell, a farmer residing south of Columbiana, with the theft of a narrow and a double set of single trees. He was arrested at Leetonia and turned over to Constable C. E. Donahay of Butler township. The narrow was offered for sale at a public sale in Butler township.

Republican Chief

Everett Sanders of Indiana, ex-congressman and former secretary to Calvin Coolidge, was elected Republican committee-man and campaign manager. He will make Chicago his headquarters to run the Hoover-Curtis campaign.

JURY DECREE'S WIFE SLAYER'S DEATH IN CHAIR

Wayne County Farmer Convicted After Seven-Hour Debate

(By Associated Press) MILLERSBURG, O., June 18.—The first death chair verdict for murder ever traced by a Holmes county jury was returned last night against Herbert Meeker, Wayne county farmer, for the slaying of his young wife, Gertrude.

Meeker was found guilty after the jury deliberated seven hours. His wife's nude and battered body was found in a creek near here, May 9.

Death Mandatory

The trial of Meeker was the first on a first degree murder charge in Holmes county, in 52 years. The verdict, failing to include a recommendation of mercy, makes death in the electric chair a mandatory sentence. Common Pleas Judge R. B. Putnam will pronounce the sentence Tuesday.

Meeker heard the jury's decision with no sign of emotion though he had steadfastly said he was innocent of the charge. His counsel will seek a new trial.

Blames Relative

The convicted man claimed Mrs. Meeker was slain by Harold Young, 19, a relative, who committed suicide when officers went to his home to arrest him. Young struck the woman on the head with a tire pump while the three were riding in an automobile, Meeker testified.

Young had intended the blow for Meeker, the latter said.

ASK M.E. CHURCH CONFERENCE TO RETURN PASTOR

Members of Local Congregation Want Rev. Mayer Retained

DISTRICT HEAD GIVES ADDRESS

Officers Elected, Reports Are Read At Annual Meeting

The Methodist Episcopal church, at its annual meeting Friday evening, passed a resolution asking the Northeast Ohio conference of this denomination to return Rev. S. A. Mayer, the pastor, to Salem for another year. The resolution was presented to the congregation by the pastor-relations committee, of which Roy West is chairman.

Finishing Third Year

Rev. Mayer, who is closing his third year with the local church, has also taken an active part in the civic life of the community.

In the same resolution, the church asks that Dr. C. D. Marston, of Steubenville, district superintendent, be returned.

Dr. Marston spoke at this meeting, using for his theme, "Spiritual Benefits of the Depression."

One of the benefits named by the speaker was "the broadening of human sympathies." Dr. Marston is of the opinion that out of this depression will come a greater dependence on God than on human strength, and that it will help people to see that there are other things in life than just the material.

Officers Elected

Officers were elected and reports read from all officers and heads of the various departments. Fifty-one new members have been received in the last year.

The new stewards are: W. R. Pearce, Chester Gow, George Dressel, Rev. J. L. Culp, Miss Ella Stamp and Mrs. William Taylor. Mrs. Taylor is communion steward.

R. C. Gibbs was named delegate to the North East Ohio conference which convenes in September at Wooster. W. W. Tolerton is alternate.

Mrs. Laura Garside and Thomas S. Davis, two members of the church are seriously ill. For years these members were efficient workers in the church. At this meeting a resolution of appreciation of their work was passed and a copy will be sent to each family.

A report of the recent general conference of the church at Atlantic City was given by Mrs. W. H. Mead of Palakiska, O., a delegate.

COMMEMORATE BICENTENNIAL

Emanuel Lutherans Will Also Observe Children's Day

Combining a children's day program with another program commemorating the bicentennial anniversary of the birthday of George Washington, a special service will be held at the American Emanuel Lutheran church, South Broadway, Sunday, June 26.

Plans for the service are being completed by committees under the direction of Rev. B. E. Rutzy, pastor of the church. Rev. Rutzy will speak at the service, discussing the subject, "How Lutherans of America Aided in the Struggle for Independence."

George Wannemacher of Damascus will give sketches from the life of Washington while an elaborate children's day program will be presented under the direction of Mrs. Orrie Rutter, primary school superintendent, and Ronald Fleischer, superintendent of the church Sunday school.

Mrs. John F. Schmid is organist and chorist. Special songs will be sung by the choir.

150 Attend O. E. S. Reception Here for Three Past Matrons

One of the most beautifully appointed social functions ever staged by Salem chapter No. 334, Order of the Eastern Star, was that Friday evening at Masonic temple, East State st., when a reception was held in honor of Miss Myrtle Windle, deputy grand matron of District 13, and Mrs. William Turner and Mrs. J. D. Dewees, past deputy grand matrons, all members of Salem chapter.

Mrs. Turner was the first worthy matron of Salem chapter.

The event was sponsored by Mrs. William Aldom, worthy matron of the chapter, and was arranged as a surprise for the honorees.

Gifts were presented the women. William Aldom, worthy patron, made the presentation to Mrs. Turner. John T. Burns, worthy patron during Miss Windle's term as worthy matron, presented her gift, while Dr. T. T. Church, worthy patron when Mrs. Dewees was worthy matron of the chapter, made the presentation to Mrs. Dewees.

A short program of readings and music was given in the chapter room, which was enhanced with garden flowers. Refreshments were served in the dining room. This room was resplendent with flowers.

A number of officers from the district were among the 150 guests at the reception. Some of the guests were from Youngstown, East Palestine and other towns in the section.

CITY AWAITING CASH PAYMENT TO MEET BILLS

Settlement From County Scheduled Within Next Ten Days

Final cash settlements from the first half tax collections will be sent the City of Salem and board of education by Monday, June 27. It was announced today in the office of County Auditor John H. Irwin in Lisbon.

Apportion Funds

Apportionment of funds obtained from taxes to be sent the municipal and school treasuries is now being made by the county auditor's office, it was reported, and checks for final settlements will be sent to this city within ten days at the least.

County officials as yet were unable to estimate the amounts.

Municipal employees — firemen, policemen and other city workers — were scheduled to be paid Friday but again went without wages and salaries. The city will be unable to issue checks until the final tax settlement is received from the county, officials stated.

Turn Off Gas

The city hall is now without hot water as a result of another step in the municipality's retrenchment plan. Gas was shut off temporarily, at the request of officials, by the Natural Gas Company of West Virginia.

As a result of a recent meeting of all council members, officials and department heads, city council is expected, at its meeting next Tuesday night, to discuss further plans for reduction of expenses.

Average School Attendance Good

Final attendance reports for the 1931-32 term of Salem public schools were announced today by Earl S. Kerr, superintendent.

A total of 527 students had perfect attendance records out of total enrollment of 2,823 while average attendance for the term was 95.8 per cent.

The high school, with 972 per cent, led other schools, followed by junior high with 96.5 and Reilly and McKinley with 94.9. Records of other schools are: Prospect 94.8, Columbia 93.9 and Fourth st., with 93.4 per cent.

A total of 1,414 boys and 1,409 girls were enrolled in the seven schools during the year. Columbia school had only nine cases of tardiness during the entire term.

AND WHAT WILL DEMOCRATS DO ON PROHIBITION?

It's Chief Question On Tongues of Convention-Bound Partisans

PLANK HEWN BY G. O. P. IS RAPPED

Shouse Declares Democrats Will Be Specific and Brief

By W. B. RAGSDALE

Associated Press Staff Writer CHICAGO, June 18.—Prohibition, the word that spelled roaring dispute, now straggling homeward, was first on the tongues today of convention-bent Democrats.

Candidates, economic issues, even organization, took second place in the discussion of newly arrived Democratic leaders to the question: What will the Democrats do about prohibition?

Raps G. O. P. Plank

Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, called the Republican plank impossible, and said the Democrats would be specific and brief. He expected that it would denounce conditions under prohibition in its preamble.

The tentative picked members of the Democratic resolutions committee will assemble next Thursday to begin work on that party's platform, hoping that they can saw out the rough outlines of most of the planks by the time the convention assembles. Open hearings probably will be held on some disputed issues.

While the resolutions committee may have a ready-made plank for the convention when it meets, Shouse does not believe the prohibition question will be disposed of without a floor fight such as provided the Democratic high spot for the newly adjourned Republican meeting.

Garner, Murray Forces Arrive

Headquarters of two of the Democratic presidential contenders are set up, but that of the leading candidate, Franklin D. Roosevelt, has not yet been opened. The first on the scene were representatives of John N. Garner, the speaker of the house. Quarters for Gov. Murray of Oklahoma were opened today.

Garner, Roosevelt, Murray, Gov. Ritchie of Maryland, Gov. Byrd of Virginia, Fighting "Jim" Reed of Missouri, and that "happy warrior" of 1928, Alfred E. Smith, will be the names that look down upon the public from the colored posters in the Congress hotel. Most of them will be here in person for the tussle and mid-week will find them on the ground, digging in for the battle.

District Appeals Court Jurist Sustains Fractured Ribs, Cuts

Judge L. T. Farr of the Seventh district court of appeals was injured in an automobile accident near Warren, this morning, attendants at a Warren physician's office said.

Judge Farr's injuries were reported as two fractured ribs and facial cuts. He went on to his home at Lisbon.

Three From County Apply For Paroles

LISBON, June 18—Three Columbiana county prisoners at the London prison farm have filed application for parole, and these hearings have been scheduled for July 26 and 31. Notice of filing the applications has been given Prosecuting Attorney John E. Baucknecht.

Thomas Lewis, convicted of forgery and convicted Sept. 29, last, was sentenced by Judge W. F. Lones to serve from one to 20 years.

E. M. Wilson, convicted of felonious assault Sept. 29, last, was sentenced to serve from one to 10 years. This latter application will be heard July 31.

This "Means" Jail

Following his conviction at Washington, D. C., on charges of having swindled Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean out of $104,000 in an alleged scheme to return the kidnapped Lindbergh baby, Gaston B. Means, former Department of Justice agent, is shown entering the wagon for his ride to prison, where he will spend the next 15 years. Means had represented to Mrs. McLean that he could obtain the return of the baby for the named sum, but failed to make good or to return the money.

YOUNGSTOWN TO REOPEN THIRD BANK BY JULY 6

Financing Program Completed by Reorganization Group

(By Associated Press)

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 18.—The City Trust and Savings bank, which closed here last October 14, will re-open about July 6, it was announced today by a reorganization committee.

The opening will mark the resumption of business by the last of three banks which closed here on the same day, tying up financial resources of approximately $60,000,000. The last statement before the city bank closed showed resources of about $19,000,000.

The two other banks which closed, the First National reopened January 4, as the Union National bank, in a merger with the Commercial National, and the Dollar Savings and Trust company reopened May 16.

The city bank's committee announced today that holders of 85 per cent of its deposits had signed an agreement putting 45 per cent of their funds into a holding company and tying up the remainder for repayment over a four year period. The bank also obtained a $2,300,000 loan from the reconstruction finance corporation.

Banks To Figure Taxes On Checks From Depositors

Holders of checking accounts in Salem banks need not trouble themselves about details of the new federal tax on bank checks which they will pay, beginning next Tuesday, officials of the Farmers National and First National banking institutions announced here today.

The federal law requires that a check tax of two cents shall be paid by persons writing checks. In the system arranged by the two Salem banks they will figure the tax for their depositors with the result that the latter will not be forced to purchase the stamps and affix them.

The government requires that the banks collect the tax from their customers and turn it over to the federal internal revenue department. The total tax to be paid by banks to the government will be compiled at the end of each month.

The introduction of this system, banking officials explained, will mean the saving of much time for depositors but will prove costly to the banks. The two institutions are adopting the system, they explained, as part of their contribution towards aiding the federal government in balancing its national budget.

The government introduced the check tax as another means of increasing its revenue and aid in the elimination of the present treasury deficits.

JOHN CITIZEN PAYS

This is the week that skeptical taxpayers will peel off their coats reluctantly and start the most unpleasant task they ever have undertaken in peace times—balancing the federal budget. At least, it seems wise to employ the words "balance the budget" for the sake of preserving what little enthusiasm there may be. Actually, the job will be one of trying to balance the budget. Revenue estimates are tricky; a great treasurer missed a guess by a billion dollars once.

There is no inclination in any quarter to whoop up enthusiasm for the job. Rather, the popular attitude is that there is a disagreeable job to be done and that the more the people hate it the more likely they will be to take such steps as will guarantee that the same set of circumstances won't be permitted to put them in a hole again. They are going to have to take their medicine and like it, which is the surest way of making sure that they will dislike it.

Taxes, big and little, will drop on them from the most unexpected places. Some will descend with a thud, some will creep up quietly and strike from the rear and a great many will never be suspected at all until sooner or later it is disclosed that they have been making an insidious drain on the public's resources. Take the man who drives an automobile, as a typical example.

He will pay, probably indirectly, a tax of 3 per cent on the price of his new car. The oil in the crank case, the tires on the wheels and the gasoline in the tank as the car is driven out of the salesroom have been taxed. When they are placed they will be taxed again, and so on ad infinitum, until the budget is balanced some remote day. The manufacturers of the automobile and the products for which it makes a market will pay a tax on their profits, the dealer on his, and the buyer on the income which enabled him to make the purchase. If he pays by check, he will be subject to more tax, and if he has to sell a share of stock to fill out his account again he will pay another tax on that. The trick under the new law is not to find places where the federal government collects taxes, but to find some places where it doesn't. Meanwhile, local and state taxes go on as before, with good prospects for substantial increases as cities, counties and states finally confront the necessity of balancing their respective budgets.

It's been one thing to talk about balancing the budget. It's going to be something else again to do it. John Citizen, who has been paying close attention, now is invited to step up to the platform to see how it is done. How he hates it! And the more he hates it, the stronger the guarantee that sooner or later the expansion of government which has been the cause of it all will be halted while the people catch up with the expense account.

STORM AHEAD

Sensible men never have held the deluded belief that the problems posed by sale and consumption of alcoholic beverages ever can be settled permanently in the United States. It is not even difficult to find those who doubt that they can be subdued to any considerable extent. Certain it is that no attack can be made on them without terrific strife.

The United States is but one nation; the 18th amendment but a phase of its attempt to deal with a matter that is a permanent social thorn in the side of the world. Modification or repeal of the 18th amendment, it follows, would be only further phases in the national effort to arrive at a solution. Americans who have mistrusted the amendment's operation have prevailed upon the Republican party, and shortly will prevail similarly upon the Democratic party, to lay their plans for improvement before the nation. Knowing full well that there is a storm ahead, they have pleaded for a chance to brave it. Drys are prepared to fight them to the finish. The center of the storm will be congress. Beginning this year, wet and dry lines will be tightly drawn wherever national prohibition is an issue. It is the new congress into whose hands will be delivered the mandates of the two political parties. The legislative body not only has the power to make the supreme decision in the matter, but the right to start the ponderous machinery which may move to open the way for the decision. Both wets and drys are vitally concerned with the makeup of congress, therefore.

There is this to be said as the contest gets under way. For several years past the desirability of clearing the air has been a pressing demand upon definite political action. The way for that action will be pointed out clearly in the coming elections. An indefinite period of uncertainty lies ahead, but the people will profit from knowing definitely with what forces they will be obliged to deal. Outright repeal, modification or retention of the amendment—whatever the final outcome—it will give the present widespread unrest the benefit of definiteness.

What Others Say

CRIME IN AMERICA

How are we to explain the fact that Canada is comparatively free from crimes of violence? The dominion and the republic exist alongside one another and one wonders why there should be this great difference between them. The prevalence of crime in the United States is, undoubtedly, partly due to prohibition. Since the republic went dry the liquor traffic has been driven underground; in large measure bootlegging gangs have taken over control of affairs in certain areas; gangs have steadily grown in power and audacity; battles with machine guns have been quite a common sight in the streets of Chicago and many other large cities throughout the republic have been the scenes of daring outrages. What is far worse is the fact that most of the criminals have been immune from punishment.

If we look behind prohibition we find another reason for the non-enforcement of the law in the fact that most of the judges are elected by public vote and therefore, unfitted for office; while the police forces are mere political machinery. Some people have attributed the terrible record of the United States to the submerging of the original Anglo-Saxon population by a tremendous inundation of continental European immigrants. Some semblance of truth is loaned to the theory by the circumstance that many of the criminals of whom we read from day to day bear foreign names. The curious thing, however, is that the bearers of these names did not become criminals until they resided under the American institutions.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

War veterans, members of the capital's destitute army of bonus marchers, wearing Distinguished Service Medals, are shown escorting the body of the late Representative Edward Eslick, of Tennessee, from the Capitol Union Station for the last homeward journey. Thousands of veterans stood bareheaded along the entire route of the procession in a final tribute to their champion. Rep. Eslick died of a heart attack while making an impassioned plea for immediate payment of the bonus to vets.

HEALTH

Avoiding Hardened Arteries.

Arteriosclerosis is the medical term for a condition commonly known as hardening of the arteries. In this affliction, the arteries lose their normal elasticity and become brittle, due to certain changes in the artery walls. These blood vessels, often called "pipe lines," contain within their walls elastic tissue and muscular tissue. When the heart beats, blood is forced into the arteries. The pressure, or force necessary to maintain a constant flow of blood, is made possible by the action of the elastic tissues within the blood vessel walls.

In arteriosclerosis the elasticity is diminished or lost. Instead of healthy muscular and elastic tissue, the pipe lines are brittle and rigid, due to deposits of lime which cause the lining of the arteries to become rough and irregular.

When these changes occur, the pipe lines no longer assist in the circulation of the blood. Instead, the hardened arteries serve to retard the normal flow of blood, and thus more work is thrown upon the heart, causing an increase in the blood pressure. Also, insufficient blood is carried to certain parts of the body, causing discomfort and pain.

There are three types of arteriosclerosis, and the most common type is due to old age. It is well known that as we grow older our blood vessels undergo certain changes. Some degree of hardening of the arteries is present in most old people, and some persons grow old more quickly than others.

Hardening of the arteries is now believed to depend on how we live, rather than how long we live. Overstrain of any sort, continued for a long time, is the chief factor in causing hardening of the arteries while overeating, over-exercise, or lack of sufficient exercise will produce definite changes in the arteries which lead to hardening.

Arteriosclerosis may be due to infection from certain infectious diseases, such as typhoid fever, pneumonia and tuberculosis; and it is believed by some authorities that focal infections found in diseased tonsils, infected teeth, sinuses, gallbladder or appendix, are factors in causing hardening of the arteries. In these cases it is believed that the trouble is caused by the liberation of poisons which result from the infection.

The third type of arteriosclerosis accompanies or follows high blood pressure. Contrary to common belief, not all cases of high blood pressure end in hardening of the arteries, although many cases show signs of it. Certainly high blood pressure if neglected is likely to result in hardening of the arteries.

Persons with arteriosclerosis should not indulge in strenuous exercise. Rest and relaxation are essential for them. The diet should be simple. Overeating is dangerous. Salt, peppers, spices and condiments should be avoided and the diet should contain a minimum amount of meat. A daily afternoon nap is advisable, and whenever possible it is wise to stay outdoors in the sunlight and fresh air.

QUESTION—Much damage is being caused to my corn by something that seems unusual to me. Suckers have started from the sides of the plants and the corn seems to be going backwards instead of making normal growth. What could be the cause of this?—A. G. M., Hancock county.

ANSWER—It may be that bill bugs have cut off the heart of your corn, or something has worked on the roots. It may be due to an excess of nitrogen in the soil. There is not much you can do, for experts say it does not pay to sucker the corn, and it is too late to replant.

QUESTION—What has to be done in Ohio to get the same service from local government for less money?—O. J. B., Belmont county.

ANSWER—Volumes could be written in answering this, but we have been printing tax complaints in Ohio for half a century. The purpose of taxation is largely to carry on government. We need government, but we feel that it is too costly. Enough extravagant, useless effort, duplication of services, and inefficiency have been uncovered to warrant some drastic action relating to all local governmental procedure in order to get the same efficiency that has to be applied in private business if it is to survive. A constitutional amendment should be adopted to permit the voters of any county to have the form of government they choose, protecting them at the same time against being forced to submit to some government they do not choose.

We need a few legislative enactments to permit changes for good in present local government procedure.

QUESTION—I have a field on which I have been feeding garbage to hogs. I wish to plow it up in the very near future and sow it in some crop for hog pasture. What would you suggest?—G. B. C., Logan county.

ANSWER—We would suggest that you sow your field to rape.

QUESTION—Is it too late to do something about plums falling from trees? If spraying would help, what materials should I use?—R. O. B., Hardin county.

ANSWER—Probably it is the dry weather that is causing the plums to drop off. In that case there is nothing you can do until it rains, unless you water the trees well. Plums, however, have a natural thinning process they go through, and you may determine whether this is the case by examining the limbs to see if only the undersized plums are falling.

QUESTION—Is Ohio to have a constitutional convention this year or next?—J. E. H., Stark county.

ANSWER—Voters must decide whether to have a constitutional convention at the polls in November. This is no time to expend public money unnecessarily, and the convention would cost heavily, but that must be decided by the voters.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Purely personal piffle. I feel a little sick talking to an Indian. Andrew Mellon suggests having just stepped off a glacier. No celebrity has the self-effacing modesty of Helen Wills Moody. A favorite candy is odd-fashioned conical-shaped chocolate drops.

Slum streets interest me more than fashionable boulevards. If I don't go to work directly after breakfast I'm sunk for the day. Until I met him, I somehow thought of Basil Woon as a Chinese. There is an ink spot on the face of my desk clock that is a startling silhouette of Mrs. Fiske.

Intimate personal correspondence is on postcards in red ink. I enjoy plays best from the front row of the balcony. Nothing infuriates me like telephone callers asking me to guess who they are. I once found a clothes pin in a Baked Alaska. And wear evening dress collars with enormous minstrel wings.

The only actress to whom I ever sought an introduction was Raquel Miller. People I like are often those I disliked before meeting. In particular—Maury H. B. Paul. The criticism I have enjoyed most of my writings, and I think the best, is: "Its virtue is its unashamed littleness."

Of all people whose society I have loved and lost, the one I miss most is that of Will Hogg. Texas Guinan is always under the delusion I'm mad at her. I'm never "mad" at anybody. A distinct diversion in my life vanished when the Palace performances became continuous.

Literature's most annoying figure is George Bernard Shaw. I think the country would be as well off with the Stock Exchange closing permanently. The most interesting of the wild game hunters is Frank Buck. I cannot remember ever drinking a glass of water between meals.

Every once in a while I have a sudden longing to visit Mt. Vernon. I frequently dream of getting a fish hook caught in my ear. No dish equals dunking corn bread in pot-likker. I'm rather tired of reading of the social activities of the Huttons.

I had a pronounced conviction the Lindbergh baby had been killed immediately after the great hue, and cry went up. For no reason, whatever, I never cared to see Lunt and Fontaine. I've had three invitations to dine at the White House but had stage fright I never knew until last week what a customer was. Nothing impresses me like an elevator in a private home.

I walk out on "wonder kiddies" on the stage. Just an old crowd. I have a bet the Empire Building will be filled by 1934 and read Variety from "kiver to kiver" each week. When I'm showing visitors around I manage to pass a dozen traffic cops with whom I have a waving acquaintance. Every letter I have published in my columns has been genuine. The most interesting one was not published. Although its author begged me to.

The only high-brow dancing I ever enjoyed was that of Isadora Duncan. And I was a trifle it. The best teller of drunk stories is James Barton. I have no bank account and my personal belongings are limited to my clothes and a typewriter. When I need money my wife gives it to me. She has never asked me for a cent. Nor have I ever had a spat about finances.

Only two dramatic critics in New York strike me as agnostics. But all an entertaining. I have visited Harlem cabarets but twice. Every visitor to Europe I urged to see Antwerp has thanked me profusely. I'm afraid of women with monocles but have no fear of spiders. The only orderly thing I do daily is cap my fountain pen. Ted Healy is my favorite of the rowdy comics. George Jean Nathan always looks as though he just woke up. I am ever at sea about the French Louis and cannot remember which one said: "Après moi, le déluge." Also I act as though I understand all about period furniture, whereas I don't know a thing. I have never called a Pullman porter George.

Twenty years ago I was a borrower at three supposedly reputable lending societies, but which were rapacious loan sharks. Had I not engaged a reputable lawyer I would still be paying off. The only fight I ever had was in Dayton, O., and I still feel silly about it—I hit the wrong fellow. Don Marquis is the best—or was when he was colunnnist—of all present day columnists.

Adds Newcomers to His Bird List

Observer Spots White-Eyed Vireo, Short Eared Owl, Summer Tanager

—BY WILLIAM C. BAKER

"Ohio Buckeyes!" The realization came suddenly to me. The realization was startling in its effect, for never before had I seen any that had not been planted by man. It was along Captina creek which flows into the Ohio at the lower corner of Belmont county. The most striking thing about the buckeyes, aside from their numbers, was the size of the leaflets. In their native bottomlands, the leaflets were as large as those of our common horse chestnut, which, although called "buckeye," and planted widely, is a native of Asia, and not at all of Ohio. Here, where the Ohio buckeye is sparsely planted, the five leaflets are seldom half as large as I found them along Captina creek.

I was making a roundabout trip to Columbus through the hills of southeastern Ohio, every bit of which was interesting. Almost all the hills were wooded, and the effect was most pleasing, whether I drove in the valleys or along the ridges. Turkey vultures soared continually. The monotonous song of vireos sounded over the noise of the motor, and once in a while I could hear the plaintive "pee-ah-wee" of the wood pewee. These were the only birds, save an occasional crow, that were evident through the heat of the day. Not long after noon, however, the indigo bantings began to sing again, and a little later, the scarlet tanagers.

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, June 19

Sunday's horoscope holds augury of lively conditions, with much commotion and stirring around in connection with private as well as business affairs. The best success may be attained by measures of secrecy, connivance or intrigue, since subtlety, craft and singular situations abound. Avoid gambling and strife.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for an exciting and eventful year, a year of much intrigue, secrecy and perhaps peculiar experiences. Refrain from speculation. A child born on this day may be subtly clever, quickwitted, fond of the limelight, but may be also impulsive, given to taking long chances and having its own way.

Notable nativity: James Walker, Mayor of New York City.

For Monday, June 20

Monday's astrological forecast is for very lively and stirring conditions, with probably much enterprise and excitement. But these may prove contributory to sudden decisions andd unwise changes which may result unprofitably or even physically dangerous. The mind may be disturbed and uncertain.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of much excitement, with a tendency to an aggressive and enterprising rearrangement of the affairs, yet it is possible that an uncertain mental vision may lead to rash decisions and hazardous situations, both in business and in personal relations. A child born on this day should be enterprising, resourceful and productive, of keen mentality, but may be rash, hasty, restless and excitable.

Notable nativity: Lillian Russell, prima donna.

"MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY"

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY

BY ANTHONY ABBOT

COPYRIGHT, 1931 BY DOWDY-FRIEDLE INC., DISTRIBUTED BY KING-NATHAN'S SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Lola Carewe, "The Night Club Lady," and her guest, Christine Quirens, are mysteriously murdered in the former's apartment. Scorpions were the instruments of death. The police suspect Guy Everett, the last person to see Christine alive. Lola had blackmailed Everett. He, however, claims that Christine discovered a plot to kill Lola and feared for her own life because of her knowledge. Police Commissioner Thatcher, Colt learns that a young Paris bank clerk named Basil Boucher, loved Lola. After robbing a bank to buy her a ruby, Basil disappeared. His parents sold medical laboratory specimens. Mrs. Carewe, Lola's mother, became hysterical at the mention of Basil, calling her daughter a beast and saying Lola never loved him. Edward Quirens, Christine's brother, left his Rochester home for New York following the receipt of a telegram the day of the murders. Christine was to have inherited wealth shortly. Suspicion also points to Dr. Hugh Baldwin when it is disclosed that he purchased scorpions. He had stated heart failure caused the deaths. Colt, calling to question Baldwin, finds him dead—from a scorpion bite! Mrs. Baldwin reveals that she knew her husband was involved with Lola. Detectives report Baldwin met a man who gave him a box. In Baldwin's desk the Commissioner finds a statement in which the doctor explains he accidentally poisoned Gaylord Gifford, Lola's husband. Lola's knowledge of this placed Baldwin in her power. She forced him to supply narcotics which she used to victimize her friends and later blackmailed them.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR

"This is the woman to whom I have been shackled in an unholy pact for the last several years. Will it seem to be strange if I confess that she has exercised over me a horrible and fantastic influence? How can we desire that which has made us suffer torment? No psychoanalytical theory has made that mystery clear to me, for they answer me only in words and I suffer in my nerves and tissues. I am a home-loving man. I dearly love my wife and children. I could be happy and content, making a modest living for them and living out my life in the quiet paths of my profession. It is Lola who has broken my wife's heart. It is she who has brought a cloud of suspicion, a plague of unhappiness into my home. How, then, is it that when I am alone with her I try to hold her in my arms? It is this, as much as anything else, that has made me so hate my own life that I am quitting it. I feel unclean. Yet—for whatever value it may be to the psychologist—let me record it here and now that I did passionately desire this woman, who has held me in bondage and has treated me with contempt, with studied and continued insolence.

"It was a queer relationship. I furnished drugs to many strange people. But even this was not the full extent of my operations. "All of this has been going on, ever since my friend died—my friend, Gaylord Gifford, whom, unintentionally, I killed. In those years of what I may call my serfdom to Lola Carewe I believed that I knew the full extent of her wickedness. But recently my eyes were opened. I learned then what I had not before even dreamed of—that in the range of this beautiful creature's crimes not even murder was excluded.

"Specifically, what brought me to this realization was a demand that she made upon me. It was an order that could have only one meaning. I was told that she wished me to obtain, through some laboratory supply agency, an insect whose bite would be instant death. She confessed to me that someone very important to her meant to commit a murder—I tell you, she brazenly confessed this to me.

"I was horror-stricken at this demand. I looked at her, as she sat before the fireplace in her living-room, as if she were a fiend from hell. The devil, I thought, must be a woman; I had always believed him a man. What reason could Lola have for a poisonous insect—unless murder were stirring in her own heart, her own head, yes, and her shapely white hands? She was the one who meant to kill!

"I uttered a positive protest. I told her I would not do what she asked. It was the first time that I had refused to do anything for her, since she had me in her power. But she did not take my rebellion seriously. The very calmness with which she heard my revolt against her demands caused me to feel the weakness of my stand. Since I had been taking orders from Lola Carewe, I had been wading deeper in crime all the time. Now she could denounce me to the police, not only for the death of her husband, from which I could have extricated myself, disgraced it is true, but at least free—but now I was guilty of half a thousand offenses that would send me to the Federal prison in Atlanta. She told me not to be silly. I finally told myself that she was right. I believed then that a freedom brought by a murder would be better than to go to prison and fasten on my family the penalties of my crimes.

"I did not stop to reason, then, that I would be only opening the door to further enormities. Once Lola had been enmeshed in a murder plot, I would, indeed, be owned by that woman. She could order me to kill as often as she liked. "But this I did not realize, then,

I suppose I did realize it, to tell the truth, but overriding all such saner calculations was the one desire to protect myself. I was afraid of Lola Carewe. Besides, what danger was I running to provide her with the little thing she asked—an insect whose bite was positively deadly? How was I to know what she would use it for?

"It was with such base and specious reasoning that I persuaded myself I went to a Spanish youth whom I knew—Ricardo Villafraña is his name—and talked to him about my quest. Ricardo is the proprietor of one of the laboratory supply houses with which I have dealt. In the past he specializes in Central and South American specimens. Ricardo told me that he believed a certain scorpion, very frequently found in the Durango region of Mexico, was the most certain in its death-dealing proclivities. He had one which he showed me and upon my paying a fee, he let the scorpion free from its box and attack a dog. The death of the animal from that bite was swift and terrible; in all my experience as a physician I have never seen anything quite like it. More than once there has been one of the frightful creatures in a little box on my desk here, close to my ear. I could hear a soft noise that it made in the box. Death within the reach of my hand—and making a soft noise!

"But I must not let my morbid state of mind intervene between my purpose and this page. I must write the truth about Lola Carewe down on paper. At any moment I am liable to be killed. For I did not realize that when I went on the errand of buying her deadly insects, she had fully resolved that I was to be one of her victims.

"How did I know that? All in due course, my friend—you whom I do not know, but whose eyes now fall upon this manuscript. I gave the orders for the Durango scorpions. I told Lola that delivery was promised within four weeks. I remember that it was on Thanksgiving Day that I made her that promise.

"Then I tried to forget about the matter. I tried to plunge into my practice, which had been suffering because of my other preoccupations. I tried to be kinder to my wife and children. I tried to pick up all the threads of the old life, before this woman had come into my life. "But even that brief interlude was not to be allowed to me. One night I was summoned to the penthouse by an excited telephone call from Lola's mother. Incidentally, need I say that my office was in the same building with Lola only because she had commanded it so? I hurried upstairs in the elevator, for the call had caught me at the office. I found that Christine Quirens was ill; it was really a case of simple stomach disorder. But Christine was suffering considerable pain, and at first I wondered if Lola was about to put her on the drugs. But no—that was not it. I was able to relieve Christine. I was alone in the guest-room, attending to the wailing Christine, when I suddenly became, without any intention to be that, a listener at an incriminating conversation between Lola Carewe and Mr. Vincent Rowland. "I will confess this was a terrific shock to me. Ever since my college days I had known of Vincent Rowland. He was one of New York's most glamorous old gentlemen. He was a patron of young people, struggling in the arts. How many poets and painters, novelists and playwrights could thank Vincent Rowland for a grub-stake while they worked on things they felt were precious! How much the symphony orchestra owed to his largeness of generosity! What a powerful voice he was in all movements for civic progress! True, there were whispered tales of his prodigality with his women friends. I could not condemn him for that. I put him down as a dirty old gentleman and let it go at that.

"But what was this I was over-hearing? It was unmistakably the voice of Vincent Rowland. He and Lola had been to a night club together. Now he had brought her home. Neither Lola nor Rowland knew that I was in the house. They thought the occupants were asleep. They spoke off guard.

"I heard Vincent Rowland say to Lola that he felt she should not take such risks. And I heard Lola impatiently demand what on earth he expected her to do—not squeeze the last ounce of gold out of these suckers, when it was there for the asking? My hair was standing on end. All along I had thought of Lola Carewe as the head and front of all this offending. Now I was forced to believe the evidence of my own ears—that the brain of her plots lay under the white and innocent-seeming old head of Mr. Vincent Rowland. He was the spider in the midst of the web. Rowland was the man behind Lola Carewe.

"I saw that Christine Quirens understood perfectly. She, too, had heard. She motioned to me not to speak. We listened. What more we could have heard I do not know. But perhaps Chung appeared just then—that yellow man was always showing up when you least expected him—so perhaps it was Chung who told Lola that I was in the next room with Christine.

"Distinctly I heard Lola gasp. The next instant the door was flung open. There stood Lola and her aged companion. They were looking in at us with Bluebeard eyes. Christine began to cry. I asked what was the matter. They accused us of eavesdropping. I told them the truth. Then Lola's mother came and defended us. Lola calmed down. But I saw that gleam in Vincent Rowland's eyes. I knew he regarded me as a danger. I knew that I would now have to watch out for myself.

SEARS ROEBUCK IS SOFT SPOT

Sinks In Response to Dividend Omission, Market Sluggish

(The Associated Press)
NEW YORK, June 18.—The stock market was sluggish but irregularly lower in the early trading today. Sears Roebuck was a soft spot, opening with a salt of 3,020 shares at 11½ off 1½, then sinking under 77, in response to omission of the dividend. Auburn and Lambert also sank a couple of points in the first half hour, but changes in U. S. Steel, American Telephone and American Can were limited to minor fractions and Case and Consolidated gas were up fractionally.

tion, has flown 430 miles in an hour, beating the world record held by Britain.

Mussolini knows that future wars will be won in the air and under water, and his government finances intelligent flying ideas. This country should follow suit.

A PLANE going 430 miles an hour, fueled for long flight, could, and some day will, cross the ocean in seven hours. That would not give us much time to get ready.

Speed and thoroughness are parts of Mussolini's methods. Utterly fearless, he is anxious to complete his work and dislikes those that persist in trying to murder him.

The recent plot to bomb Mussolini was immediately followed by the conviction of Domenico Bonvone, and 12 hours later came the death sentence for Angelo Sbardolotto. He showed complete indifference, refusing to make any appeal to the king.

Yesterday both these men were shot in the back. That was supposed to make death more horrible, by humiliation, because cowards, shot while running away, are shot in the back. The great French fighter Crillon, you will remember, laid out after death, all undressed, was covered with scars from fore-head to instep. When they turned him over, there was not a scratch on his back.

BUYERS everywhere are comparing low-priced cars. Lifting hoods. Counting cylinders. And the result? An overwhelming verdict for the six, in preference to cars of fewer or more cylinders.

"SIX CYLINDERS. No more—No less!" And America backs up that conviction by purchasing more six-cylinder Chevrolets since January 1st, than the combined total of all fours and eights under $1000.

With more than six cylinders, you sacrifice Chevrolet's famous economy of gas, oil and upkeep—the greatest economy in today's motor car market.

With less than six cylinders, you sacrifice the built-in smoothness that makes driving really enjoyable.

But with a six—a Chevrolet Six—nothing is sacrificed. You get smoothness AND economy.

And power—60 horsepower. And speed—65 to 70 miles an hour, easily!

And pick-up—from a standstill to 35 miles an hour in less than 7 seconds!

You also get Free Wheeling; Syncro-Mesh gear-shifting; big, spacious Fisher bodies.

So, when buying a new low-priced car, settle the question of cylinders RIGHT, and you can't go WRONG. Take America's word for it: "SIX CYLINDERS. No more—No less!"

SCOTT-LEWIS

Miss Leone Lynne Scott of Olin, Ia., and Frank P. Lewis of Woodbine, Ia., assistant athletic coach at Salem high school, were married at 4:30 p. m. last Tuesday at the Methodist Episcopal church parsonage at Martelle, Ia., by Rev. G. W. Self. The immediate families of the couple witnessed the nuptials. The wedding dinner was served at Hotel Roosevelt in Cedar Rapids, Ia.

Mrs. Lewis is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Scott of Olin. She was graduated from Olin high school and from a course in home economics at Iowa State Teachers college, where she was affiliated with the Phi Omega Pi sorority. Since her graduation she has taught in the public schools at Baldwin and Olin.

BIBLE CLASS SOCIAL

A program of plays and music provided entertainment at the Apron social given by the Lydia Bible class of Holy Trinity English Lutheran church Friday evening at the church. It was well attended. Miss Betty Franke was in charge of the program.

A play, "How the Story Grew," was given by eight members of the class, Mrs. J. A. Fehr, Miss Mary Berger, Mrs. J. E. Johnson, Miss Sadie Schaffer, Mrs. Paul Ritchey, Mrs. Ruth Becker, Mrs. Edward Hoch and Mrs. Charles Davidson. Two other playlets were included: "Trains Going West" by Mrs. Donald Cobb, Mrs. A. T. Helm and Mrs. Wilkinson; "Radio Recipe," Mrs. J. E. Johnson, Mrs. H. E. Smith and Mrs. W. Seederly.

A male quartet composed of Rev. G. D. Keister, Daryl Everett, C. G. Blackburn and Jamey Turney gave a selection, with L. C. Loschky at the piano. Miss Hilda Franke and Mr. Loschky played a piano duet and the women of the class sang a selection. Mrs. Paul Ritchey, class president, gave a talk.

AT TURNER HOME

On Friday afternoon members of Division 2 of the Ladies Aid society of the Presbyterian church met at the home of Mrs. William Turner, Ohio ave., with about 23 in attendance.

After the business meeting a play, "Gossip" was given by a group of women. The game of "hearts" furnished amusement. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Turner and her assisting hostess, Mrs. Luella Harris.

Plans are being made for a joint picnic of the three divisions, which compose the Aid society, in July. The day and place will be announced later.

LUNCHEON AT CLUB

The first of a series of luncheon-bridge parties to be given by the women members of the Salem Golf club this summer at the club house, Lisbon rd., was held Friday.

Associate hostesses were: Mrs. F. G. Harris, Mrs. W. P. Carpenter, Mrs. R. W. Campbell, Mrs. L. H. Brush and Mrs. C. C. Gibson.

Trophies were awarded Mrs. W. S. Atchison, Miss Cherry Manton, Mrs. R. S. McCulloch and Mrs. H. E. Shuler.

New Jersey Police on Trial in Suicide of Morrow Maid

Representations for Investigation Made to Washington by Great Britain, Following Charges of "Third Degree Brutality."

MRS. VIOLET W. MORROW

Owing to the storm of criticism raised by the English press following the suicide of Violet Sharpe, maid in the home of Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, at Englewood, N. J., the British Government is requesting Washington to conduct an investigation into the charges that the girl was driven to her death by the brutality of New Jersey State police inquisitors. The British press has been very bitter in its condemnation of "brutal American police methods," but the facts do not support any such charges. Governor Harry Moore of New Jersey, who has kept in close touch with the Lindbergh case, has investigated the allegations of third degree cruelty that have been leveled against Colonel Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the State Police, and his colleagues and declared that he found no basis for the charges. With every sympathy for the girl, who, though apparently innocent, committed suicide rather than face further questioning or longer endure the strain of suspicion, it ought to be made clear that her repeated interrogation was the result of the doubt she raised in the minds of the police by her evasive replies when first questioned on her whereabouts on the night of the crime. As for brutality, it is a matter of record that Miss Sharpe was treated with the utmost circumspection, out of consideration for Mrs. Morrow, who had reiterated her confidence in the girl's innocence on many occasions. Colonel Lindbergh himself was present once when she was questioned and it is unthinkable that he would permit any of the rough stuff hysterically ascribed to the investigators.

THE HOME KITCHEN

By Jeanette Young Norton

Flavoring at Low Cost

"What gives these creamed mushrooms such a heavenly flavor?" asked the guest with an educated palate. "It's not the ordinary mushroom cream sauce."

Very simple. Merely sweet cream added to mushrooms cooked in butter—added just a minute before removal from the fire.

A few tablespoons of sweet cream, now quite low in price, will glorify the plainest vegetable dish. Boiled carrots, potatoes, little white onions, or the flaked fish or chicken leftovers, heated with a little cream can be made perfectly delicious.

Fine flavorings improve the simplest dishes. Use a cup or two of bouillon instead of hot water to soak bread crumbs for stuffing. Baste meat with fruit juice—orange, grape or apricot—instead of hot water. Add sour cream to meat gravies and you will enrich the sauce marvelously.

Sour cream blended with chile sauce and a dash of lemon juice is a most refreshing dressing for vegetable salads, especially cucumbers, radishes, beets, tomatoes, young scallions. Persons who are fond of dressing, but not of oil or vinegar find this a pleasing substitute.

And talking of salad, it's the flavoring that makes or mars this important summer dish. All the onion family have something of good flavor to impart. A bit of garlic rubbed on the salad bowl gives a pungent but delightful flavor. A teaspoon of chopped chives added to a raw vegetable salad, or sprinkled over cooked vegetables, pep them up a lot.

It's a wise housekeeper who goes about sampling the flavors in fresh, dried, preserved herbs and condiments. Otherwise there's a tendency to go stale on flavors, or stick to one kind exclusively. Some foreign cookery tends that way. Among the Latins, fiery seasonings are used lavishly, peppers and paprikas of the violent sort leading. Other nations go in heavily for curry, or saffron, or tomato, or the onion tribe.

To take a hint from foreign cookery and use a little of everything, temperately, would greatly enhance the palatability of the domestic cuisine.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

Housekeeping Casualties

"Oh, I do like housekeeping but look at what it does to my hands!" protested the new bride who was exhibiting the results of her early experiments. "Why is it that I can hardly cook a meal without a burn or a cut? I never dreamt that one could have so many petty accidents within the four walls of home."

Curiously, some women have a positive predisposition to these things. They can keep house for years, yet keep right on burning and cutting and pricking their fingers. It may be absent-mindedness, or lack of physical coordination, or just plain carelessness!

Gloves Save the Hands

Whatever the cause, however, it is possible to avoid these mishaps. Every young housekeeper should work with gloves—rubber gloves for the dampish jobs; thick cotton "teamsters gloves" for dusting and other dry jobs. Or for kitchen use, use a kind of cotton or chambray gloves that fit fairly well, and are not so clumsy as the teamsters gloves.

Never touch a utensil in or on the stove with bare hands. Thick gloves are a protection, but right near the stove should be hung several pot-holders. They cost only a few cents. Felt, terry cloth and padded cotton are all suitable, or an economical housekeeper can make her own pot-cloths by stitching together the best parts of worn Turkish towels cut into six-inch squares.

When buying saucepans or baking dishes, be sure they have good sturdy handles, and that the handles of saucepans are long enough to keep these dangerously hot cooking utensils at arm's length.

Convention Ducats

Miss Raye Robin, pretty Chicagoan, is shown holding the courtesy cards which are being presented to delegates to the G. O. P. national convention by Mayor Anton J. Cermak, of Chicago. The ducats are not only good for admittance to the convention hall, but will also admit bearers to ball parks and theaters.

Jesus Heals the Nobleman's Son

RECENTLY we had the story of Jesus, at the wedding in Cana, where He miraculously supplied wine for the guests, and today we see Him as He again returns to Cana of Galilee where He performs another miracle.

This time a rich Nobleman comes to the Saviour and requests that Jesus go with him to where his son was ill, to the point of death.

It is interesting to note how differently the Saviour proceeded in the performance of the two miracles. In the first instance, Jesus made sure to be present, and to convert water into wine, in the presence of eye-witnesses, whereas upon the second occasion He assumed His first miracle was sufficient to establish faith in the heart of the Nobleman, and He simply said: "Go thy way, thy son liveth."

The Nobleman did believe, and returned to his home to find that the fever had left his son at the very hour when he talked with Jesus.

As we study the Scriptures, we find in the various incidents in the life of Jesus, that He expected nothing unreasonable. He always gave His people some concrete evidence of His identity, and relationship to God. Once they had good reasons to believe; the Saviour required some manifestation of faith on the part of those who sought relief.

Such being the policy of Jesus, we at once see where our responsibility is much greater, since we have before us, the record of a living, a crucified and risen Lord. Yet we have His promise that what-so-ever we ask in His name will be given unto us. It therefore appears obvious, that if we are not the benefactors of His grace, we are not making claim to His promises, in faith, believing.

Services in Our Churches this Week

HOLY TRINITY ENGLISH LUTHERAN

East State st. at Woodland ave. Rev. George D. Keister, pastor. Fourth Sunday after Trinity. Sunday school 9:45 (Genesis 46:1-30). Paul Wilms, Supt.

There should be a certain sacred respect for old age. Gray hairs, stooped shoulders, impaired vision and hearing should arouse a proper regard for those who have many years of time resting upon them. The fourth commandment, Honor thy father and thy mother, was not placed in the decalogue by God, for nothing. It is placed as first in the second table of commandments which center on our duties to our fellowman. That age or era will fall into evil times when it casts to the winds, honor and respect for parents and high regard for old age. There are rewards for keeping the fourth commandment. There is joy and satisfaction to the ones so honored, there is an inward happiness to the ones honoring. "Live long the land" says the Commandment. That is not an idle statement. We have not outgrown this command. We never shall.

Morning worship in conjunction with the Children's day program, 10:30.

Sermonette: "The Rainbow." The old story about the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow has long been discounted. It is not true says the literalist. Yet the rainbow has been more than a treasure of gold for believing people since God used it as a sign of his covenant with his people. Even in our hustling and hurrying age, we pause to enjoy the beauty and splendor of the rainbow. It has a message for our day and all time. Its beauty, its simplicity, its symbolism are some of the eternal joys of the believer.

Children's day gives us the opportunity to place emphasis upon the rightful place of the child in society. They deserve a proper niche in all life. They are simply grown-up people in the developing process. Take care of the children of today, you have provided for the men and women of tomorrow.

Sunday school for pupils up to the age of 20 years at 9:45 a. m.

Wednesday evening testimony meeting at 8 o'clock.

All are cordially invited to attend these services.

"IS THE UNIVERSE, INCLUDING MAN, EVOLVED BY ATOMIC FORCE?" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 19. Also broadcast over WJAY every Sunday at 11 a. m.

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth....And the earth was without form, and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters....And God said, Let there be light; and there was light" (Genesis 1:1-3).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "God creates and governs the universe, including man. The universe is filled with spiritual ideas, which He evolves, and they are obedient to the Mind that makes them" (p. 295).

THE DAY IN SPORTS

R. L. FARR SHOOT 33
COURSE IN FINE SHAPE
MARTIN SUPERSTITIOUS

ROBERT L. FARR this week turned in the season's best score for nine holes at the Salem Golf club course. Farr registered a 33, two under par, and just two over the record 31 set last year by Donald McLeay, former pro at the club.

The score was made in a foursome with William Chalfant, Ralph Knepper and Max Caplan.

THE SALEM course, recently opened to play by the general public, continues to maintain its prestige as one of the district's sportiest and trickiest golf playgrounds.

Old Man Par has general evaded players during the present season, Farr's 33 being two strokes better than the previous best score, 35, turned in recently by Chalfant.

The course is one where every shot must be placed perfectly in order to count for the best. Golf is such a game where one bad stroke or a bad hole can ruin a score for the entire 18 or nine holes but this is more so at the Salem club, where accuracy is demanded more than anything else.

NON-MEMBERS of the club, wishing to play the game, and nibble over its beautiful greens, may obtain courtesy cards from members entitling them to play at all times save Wednesday, Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning.

The courtesy cards allow them to play for 50 cents a round or $1 a day.

CLAIMING himself as a former hatter in the wrestling game, a decrepit looking personage with cauliflower ears presented himself at The News. Dressed in tattered clothes that at one time were without doubt dressy and of the best cloth, he displayed a card which showed him to be authorized to wrestle in any state. His picture appeared on the card.

He wanted a "duce or trey" to help him along to Cleveland where he hoped to work himself onto a wrestling card. Lacking either a "duce or trey," your correspondent provided him with a bite of food and he loquaciously began recounting his experiences and relating why he was "on the rocks."

"The rattle racket's no good for us little 'guys,'" he commented bitterly. "Our friend was a welterweight, they want them big grunts that slam each other all over the stadium and make things look good. Us scientific fellows who rattle like the book says haven't a chance."

He went on, telling how he once performed as a strong man in a circus, nationally known, was in a sideshow, later going to a carnival where he was shown in a New York City "indoor circus."

Offered a cigarette, of which he helped himself to a handful, he continued his tale of woe, telling how the circus went "broke," owing him back salary, then suddenly dashed away, carrying remnants of banana pie in his hand, to flag down an automobile bearing a Michigan license.

W. last saw him reaching into his coat pocket where he had stored away his "rattle permit," apparently preparing for a continuance of his narrative, and we couldn't help but wonder why the blithering buzzard hadn't gone in for salesmanship instead of catch-as-catch-can.

PEPPER Martin of the Cardinals recalled that incident when "Bugs" Raymond, deceased pitcher of the Giants in those palmy days of 20 years ago, refused to sign his contract until John McGraw made his bedmate agree not to eat soda crackers in bed.

Martin last season roomed with Allyn Stout, relief pitcher, on the Cards' road trips. This year he was placed with Jimmy Collins, first-sacker, and his batting average slumped to .167.

Martin went to Manager Gabby Street and asked to change back to Stout as a roommate. Street honored his request.

The next day Martin snapped out of his slump with a double and home run.

Dayton Golfer Is New Ohio Champion

DAYTON, June 18. — Central Ohio's amateur golfer, had a new champion today. Bob Kepner of Dayton, with a 17-year-old high school boy, Bob Servis of Dayton, as runner-up.

Kepner won the title here yesterday with a 72-hole score of 296. Servis got 298. Johnny Florio of Columbus, last year's champion, was third with 301. Jimmie Wall, Dayton City high school champion, was fifth with 306.

DURHAM, N. C. — Wallace Wade and his staff of assistant coaches will conduct Duke University's second annual summer school for coaches this year from July 20 through July 23.

More than a hundred colleges, high school and preparatory school coaches from all parts of the south and east attended last summer's school and the forthcoming session is expected to be more successful.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. — Penn State's 12 varsity sports teams won 42 contests and lost 35 for an average of .545 during the college year just closed.

Tobies Trim Pottery For Seventh Straight City League Triumph

Batting for the first round championship in the Salem Softball League, the United Cigars and Salem Hardware teams, easily the class of early season play in the circuit, will clash at Centennial park field at 6 p. m. Monday.

The Cigars extended their winning streak to seven straight with a 7-2 triumph over the Salem China company Friday evening and can clinch the first round title with a victory over the Hardware.

Should the team lose both other games booked for it next week, the best the Hardware will be able to do is tie the Tobies for the league crown.

Play Off Postponed Tilts

All games scheduled next week, arranged at a meeting of the board of arbitration last night, are postponed encounters originally scheduled to be played early in the season.

The second round of play will get under way on Monday, June 27.

The Tobies are now in undisputed possession of the top rung in the league championship ladder with the Hardware second. The latter has a record of eight victories and one defeat while the Tobies have a perfect average of seven straight wins.

Hardware Conceded Chance

The Hardware has a good chance to upset the Tobies who then will be forced to triumph over the Greenlee Tires, looked on as an easy victim for the leaders, and the Brown Pennzips, one of the toughest in the circuit. The Pennzips handed the Hardware its only reverse.

Errors by Arthur Shinn, Pottery hurler, were the fatal issues in the China company's attempt at victory over the Cigars yesterday. The Cigars played errorless ball back of Eddie Miller who added nine more strikeouts to his record while Pottery fielders made but one error back of their hurler.

May Hits Homer

Earl May, gradually climbing into recognition as the league's leading home run swatter, added another circuit hit to his list.

The Mullins Foremen's club took third place in the league by upsetting the Brown Pennzips, 4-2, in a well played and thrilling encounter. Homers by Older and Barber were features.

Play in the church league, composed of seven teams since the withdrawal of First Friends, is also attracting much interest. The Baptists and Trinity Lutherans are tied for first place.

Tires Play Lisbon

Greenlee Tires will play the Lisbon Pennzips at Centennial park at 2:30 p. m. Sunday.

Cubs Provide Leading Upset In Majors; Braves Surprise

With the season approaching the halfway mark, it appears the country's baseball experts should be permitted another guess on the outcome of the 1932 major league races. Thus far, they have taken a terrific trimming.

Sixty-eight of them, casting their ballots before the campaign began, gave a majority in favor of the St. Louis Cardinals and Philadelphia Athletics to repeat in the National and American Leagues respectively.

Only three American League teams and two National have settled into the groove assigned them.

Cubs Provide Upset

The Cubs, holding tenaciously to the National League top, probably have provided the biggest upset. They were picked to finish third.

The Braves, in second place, are four notches above the spot given them in pre-season calculations, while the Giants, picked by 15 to win, have failed to reach the first division. The Cards are running fourth.

Unless they suffer a reversal of form soon, the Yankees threaten to make a runaway in the American League. But it will occasion no great surprise if they win. The balloting between them and the Athletics was close, 38 choosing the A's to win and 28 liking the Yanks.

Indians True To Form

The remainder of the junior circuit is running fairly true to form with Cleveland, Detroit and St. Louis exactly where they were placed by the poll, but the Chicago White Sox have done better than anticipated in clinging to seventh place.

There was no action whatsoever yesterday, the American League having an open date and rain erasing the National League schedule.

"Old Master" and His Successor

Here is John J. McGraw (right), manager of the New York Giants for thirty years and his successor Bill Terry, star first baseman of the team. McGraw's resignation came as a surprise to the baseball world. Terry, a holdout until after Spring training started, will continue to cover the initial sack in addition to his managerial duties.

Big Four Ready for Fight for Open Crown

Gene Sarazen

Walter Hagen

Billy Burke

Tommy Armour

The world of golf will center its attention on the Fresh Meadow County Club at Flushing, L. I., where, starting June 23rd, the best of the country's pros and some of the leading amateurs will compete for the National Open title. Here are four of the pro contingent who will surely be heard from. Gene Sarazen is fresh from his British Open conquest in England and Tommy Armour, who unsuccessfully defended the title, is also in prime form. Billy Burke, former Greenwich, Conn., caddy, who surprised the sports world by winning the championship last year, is expected to put up a hard battle to retain his crown. The veteran Walter Hagen can always be depended upon to be up with the leaders. But golf, as every duffer knows, is an uncertain game and maybe another "unknown" will ascend the throne at the end of the three-day tournament.

National Hookup Broadcasts Fight

Complete details of the Max Schmeling-Jack Sharkey heavy weight championship fight at New York next Tuesday night will be carried by The News Wednesday through Associated Press stories by Alan Gould and Edward J. Neil, noted sports writers.

The battle, scheduled for 15 rounds, will be broadcast by nation-wide chains, and is expected to begin between 8:30 and 9 p. m. The first fight is scheduled at 7. The fight will be staged at Madison Square Garden.

Carnera-Dempsey Bout Foreseen in Chicago by See

(By International News Service) PARIS, June 18. — Jack Dempsey and Primo Carnera are slated for a bout in the Windy City next summer, if Leon See's dreams come true.

Primo's veteran manager depicted his rosy-hued visions of the future to International News Service. "Soldiers Field—140,000 cheering spectators (no dead-ends)—a million-dollar gate (minimum)—a 24-foot squared ring containing the fighting Mauler and the Ambulating Alp—a fat pay check in Primo's name (And 33 1-3 per cent to Monsieur Leon See)."

That was Leon's dream. Chicago will be the Mecca of the world next year during the 1933 Exposition," declared Leon See. "And a Dempsey-Carnera scrap would make Soldiers Field the Mecca of Chicago."

"Why, Primo may be heavy-weight champion of the world before next summer. And I know my crowd psychology," said the manager who is known to French boxing circles as the "Wily Fox." "They'll not spend money in their home town. But when they're on a visit it just flows out of their pockets. And think of all the visitors in Chicago next summer."

In fact, Leon expressed his willingness to sign right on the dotted line for a fight with Dempsey in July or August 1933 with the provision that the Manassa Mauler "lay off that stuff in the sticks" and save himself for some big money—for the Carnera family—in the future.

FOXX CONTINUES BATTING SPREE; AVERILL NINTH

Philadelphian Still Tops League With .376; Klein Leads National Race

(By Associated Press) NEW YORK, June 18. — Were it not for Jimmie Foxx, the major league could be neatly separated this season, the National as the slugging circuit and the American as the pitching league, but Foxx' all-around clouting prevents such a classification.

Leads In Several Races

This week Foxx has held the league lead in batting, scoring hits, home runs and runs batted in, leading only him in the for second in triples. Up to today, Jimmie had 25 homers, four within a week, and has driven in 71 tallies. Babe Ruth was not far behind with 21 homers and 62 runs batted in. The totals for National League leaders were 17 homers by Chuck Klein and 60 runs batted in by Don Hurst, both of the Phillies.

Foxx' other first place marks were his 376 batting average, 61 runs and 83 hits and here as well as in the other clouting sections the National League was ahead. Klein had 66 runs and 86 hits and Hurst had hit safely 85 times.

Waner Hits 390

Paul Waner of Pittsburgh, National League leader, had a batting average of .390. Klein's other honors came from 10 triples, 56 runs batted in and eight stolen bases, all good for second place in his league.

Other slugging leaders were Paul Waner with 31 doubles, Red Worthington, Boston Braves with 27, and Charley Gehring of Detroit, with 18. Babe Herman, Cincinnati, 11 triples and Buddy Myer, Washington, nine.

The leading batters in each league behind the two leaders were: American League — Walker, Detroit, .364; Dicki, New York, .351; Combs of New York, .340; Gehrig, New York, .332; Lazzeri, New York, .331; Levey, St. Louis, .324; Averill, Cleveland, .319; Jolley, Boston, .316; Fothergill, Chicago, .315.

National League — Lombardi, Cincinnati, .372; Hurst, Philadelphia, .365; Hafey, Cincinnati, .359; Ott, New York, .342; Klein, Philadelphia, .337; Whitney, Philadelphia, .332; Herman, Cincinnati, .329; Critz, New York, .327; O'Doul, Brooklyn, .327.

The American League had a distinct edge in pitching. Three hurlers in the junior circuit had won 12 games apiece while the National League leaders, Steve Swetonic of Pittsburgh, was credited with seven victories and one defeat. Vernon Gomez of New York, and Bob Grove of Philadelphia, set the American League pace.

Pilots Must Fly "Blind"

To Pass New U. S. Tests

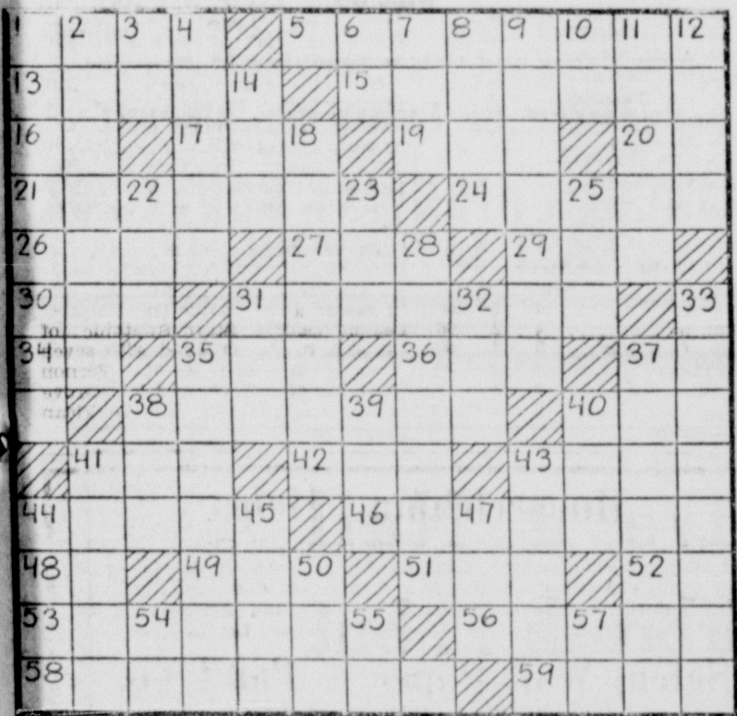

Interstate Transport Fliers, "Blinded" Under Hooded Cockpit, Must Accurately Perform Aerial Maneuvers to Meet Rigid Requirements.

"Blind" flying, that is, piloting an airplane only by instrument, without sight of the ground, is now required by the U. S. Department of Commerce of all pilots flying scheduled interstate air passenger ships. The new regulation, recently adopted, requires that a pilot must be capable of flying entirely by instrument in straight, level flight, in moderate banks, minimum glides and maximum climbs, climbing turns and recovery from stalls, skids, slips, spirals and loops. Not only that, but he must convince a Department of Commerce inspector riding with him that he can perform all these maneuvers with his cockpit securely hooded. Lower photo shows Howard Stark, "blind" flying instructor for Eastern Air Transport, closing the hood over Pilot Jerdone preparatory to Jerdone passing the strict Government test at Newark airport. Upper photo shows typical instrument board of a mail plane. It is on these instruments, particularly those in the upper center dark panel, that a pilot must rely when flying "blind." In the top center position is the Sperry Horizon. The air speed indicator is to the right and directional gyroscopic dial to the left. Below the horizon is the turn and bank indicator.

TODAY'S RADIO PROGRAMS

Amelia Earhart Putnam's return home after her solo flight of the Atlantic is to be the subject of three broadcasts Monday.

First will be New York's greeting at city hall, transmitted by WABC-CBS at 11 a. m. At 12:15 she is to be feted by the Advertising Federation of America, with broadcasts both by WABC-CBS and WABC-CBS. Then at 10 in the evening via WABC-CBS, Mrs. Putnam is to be awarded a medal by that chain as a result of her broadcasts from London.

A couple of network shifts in a week or so will send the Skipper series, now on WABC-CBS, to WABC-CBS, while Lanny Ross moves his tri-weekly singing from WABC-CBS to WABC-CBS. A convention follow-up, WABC-CBS, has set aside 5:30 p. m. each day next week except Saturday for resumes by various newspapermen—Peggy Keenan and Sandra Phillips, titian haired pianists, will qualify for an evening program on WABC-CBS right soon. They're the two young women who played their pianos in a broadcast from an airplane not long ago.

Debate Egg Problem

CHICAGO, June 18—A politician will have to go without his penguin eggs for breakfast for a while. A hotel, learning he liked them, imported two dozen from South America. But they're in cold storage while the government decides whether a penguin is a wild bird or domesticated one. It's against the rules to import eggs of wild birds.

PORT WORTH, Tex.—It appeared a simple task, when the caretaker was ordered to lock the city hall. But when he went to carry out his orders he could not find any keys. For 20 years the city hall had gone unlocked, and no member of the present regime could remember having seen the keys.

THEATER Attractions

AT THE STATE

Fredric March and Sylvia Sydney are co-starred in "Merrily We Go To Hell", playing Sunday and Monday at the State.

Two popular radio entertainers, Moss and Jones, heard regularly over WTAM, and the screen feature, "It's Tough to Be Famous," are the attractions today at the State theater.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. and Mary Brian are the featured players in the talkie. The Grand shows Tom Mix in "The Rider from Death Valley" today and Sunday.

Fredric March and Sylvia Sydney in "Merrily We Go to Hell," John Barrymore in "State's Attorney," Joan Bennett in "Week Ends Only" and "Roadhouse Murder," with Dorothy Jordan, are the screen attractions appearing at the State next week.

The March-Sidney feature is scheduled for a two-day showing starting tomorrow while Barrymore's feature, in which he is co-starred with Helen Twelvetrees, comes here Tuesday and Wednesday.

Skeets Gallagher, popular comedian, and Adrienne Allen are shown in major supporting roles in "Merrily We Go To Hell" while other members of the cast include Esther Howard, Florence Britton, George Irving and Cary Grant, recent star of "This Is the Night."

The ever-popular Barrymore takes a spectacular role in "State's Attorney," portraying the characterization of a courtroom Don Juan who wins juries by his fiery eloquence in a story of clashing loves and ambitions. With Miss Twelvetrees as his leading lady, other members of the supporting cast are Jill Esmond, Oscar Apfel, Ralph Ince and William Boyd.

Murder Tale Coming
"Roadhouse Murder," billed as a thrilling tale of murder on lonely highways during stormy nights, comes to the State for showing only Thursday with Eric Linden playing opposite Miss Jordan.

Roscoe "Stuttering" Ates heads the supporting cast of Purnell Pratt, Gustav von Seiffertitz, David Landau and Oscar Karna.

Jean Bennett, has as her leading man Ben Lyon when "Week Ends Only" comes to the State Friday and Saturday. Harriwell Hobbs, John Halliday, John Arledge and Walter Byron are other members of the cast.

George O'Brien is the leading player in the Grand's weekly western production, "Mystery Ranch," scheduled on Saturday and Sunday, June 25-26. Cecilia Parker is the leading lady of the picture which also shows Roy Stewart, star of westerners in days of silent thrillers, in a supporting role.

Chile's New Head

Formerly commander of the Chilean Air Force, Colonel Marmaduke Grove (above), who helped overthrow the government of President Juan Esteban Montero and place Carlos Davila in the saddle, has now assumed the Presidency of Chile's revolutionary junta following the forced resignation of Davila. The latter's downfall centered about the charge that he was too lenient in dealing with foreign interests.

Smile, Depression Graduates! Faces May Be Your Fortunes

Slump Has Hit Erudition, But Fame and Fortune Await Possessors of Proper Type of Masculine Beauty.

One cannot eat a diploma, nor does the privilege of wearing a couple of letters at the back of one's name help much when shoes begin to turn over at the heels. A great many graduates from colleges and universities will recognize the sad truth of that statement before long. However, there is one field where golden opportunity awaits young men of the proper type. That is the business, or should we say art, of modeling. Take the case of Jack Boyle, a graduate of the 1928 class of Fordham University. Jack wanted to be a doctor, but prosperity skipped into hiding around that corner and he became a job hunter. Apart for his varsity education—which he found useless—Jack's only asset was his manly beauty and of this asset he made such good use that he is today on top of the world. His face looks out at millions all over the world from advertisements of a well-known collar manufacturing company and the demand for his services keeps him pretty busy and his bank balance growing. Another young man who capitalized upon his masculine pulchritude is Walter Thornton, whose career as a bricklayer was ended by the depression. Walter's services are so much sought that he has had hundreds of plaster casts made of his perfect head, which he sells to artists and illustrators. Modeling was a stepping stone to movie stardom for Neil Hamilton, the publicity he received via the advertising posters having attracted the attention of Hollywood film solons. So, graduates, look in the mirror and if you bear any resemblance to Johnny Weissmuller, aquatic and film star, who is regarded as the perfect type, there is a chance that you may overcome the handicap of a college education and be a success—depression regardless.

Courageous Mother Saves Tot's Life

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, June 18—The love of a mother for her child is the story of Mrs. Rose Hammett. Like so many who lived on moored barges, she can not swim. Yet when her three year old son, Erich, tumbled overboard yesterday, she ran quickly to the side of the barge and leaped overboard. She could not swim, but air, trapped in her clothing, as she dropped feet first into the water, buoyed her. Her screams brought a rescue boat, which arrived as she lay in the water, face under and slowly sinking. It appeared as though her heroism had been in vain, but when they pulled her, unconscious, into the boat, they found, locked in her arms, her little boy. They will live.

Study Financial Problem In Lisbon

LISBON, June 18—Members of the finance committee of the village council and the board of education have concluded a conference with County John H. Irwin, having to do with sources of revenue for the two groups for the next fiscal year. At a recent meeting of the board of education salary schedules were revised downward, and the council at its next meeting will give first consideration to its budget for the new year.

Raid Lisbon Home

LISBON, June 18—Thieves entered the home of Frank Rogan, West Chestnut st., while the family was absent. The front door of the home was found open when Rogan and his wife returned. An electric iron that had never been used, a pocketbook containing a sum of money and a basket of groceries were taken. Police declare the robbery was committed by local youths.

At County Meet
Eleven members of the Salem American Legion auxiliary attended the county council meeting Friday evening at Wellsville. Other units in the county represented were Columbiana, East Liverpool, East Palestine and Lisbon. After the business meeting a program made up of classical dancing, a playlet, music and readings entertained. Lunch was served. The July county meeting will be at East Liverpool.

Won C. E. Honors
Robert Carey, member of Christian Endeavor society of the Presbyterian church, won second place in an oratorical contest, in a class of five contestants from over the county, held recently at East Liverpool. He spoke on "Why I Believe in Christian Endeavor?" Mrs. George Miser of Salem was one of the contest judges.

City Hospital Notes
Jack Crawford of Youngstown underwent a tonsil operation at the hospital. Mrs. Russell McDonald of Columbiana has entered the hospital for surgical treatment.

OKMULGEE—Working for a period of more than three months, a razor-blade his only tool, Louis Bello, a young Spanish musical note, has completed a model carved from wood of the White House at Washington. The model is 40 inches long and 18 inches high and perfect in detail.
